

LEGAL NOTICE
(Without Prejudice)
(Through RPost/Email)

Date: 09/03/ 2026

To,

The Managing Director / Authorized Signatory,

Codvo Private Limited,

Registered office : Madhapur LVS Arcade, 71,

Jubilee Enclaves, Hitech City,

Hyderabad, Telangana – 500081,

India.

Sir/Madam,

Under instructions from and on behalf of our client Mr. Suel Ahmed Abbasi, residing at Bengaluru, we hereby serve upon you the present Legal Notice as under:

1. That our client is a highly qualified professional who, pursuant to your recruitment process, was issued a formal Offer of Employment dated 28 October 2025, duly executed by Codvo Private Limited through Zoho Sign, appointing him to the position of Data Scientist Lead – III, with a confirmed joining date of 27 January 2026.
2. That the said Offer Letter was unconditional, final, and binding. It was expressly stated that it superseded all prior communications and permitted revocation only in the limited circumstance of failure or delay in background verification, which is admitted by you to be inapplicable in our client's case.

3. That based on your repeated representations, assurances, and insistence—made through official emails and WhatsApp communications—our client was specifically induced to resign from his existing employment, which he did solely in reliance upon your binding offer.

4. That as a direct consequence of acting upon your representations, our client:

- Paid a buy-out amount of ₹1,35,000/- to his previous employer;
- Forfeited an assured performance bonus of ₹6,00,000/-;
- Gave up continued employment where our client was receiving monthly gross salary of INR 226694.75/- gross per month and there was a salary security.

5. That only after our client had resigned, you abruptly disclosed—for the first time—that:

- The original project on the basis of which the offer letter was issued had been “cancelled”;
- Our client would now be required to interview with an entirely different third-party client, and this condition was never disclosed to our client prior to resignation.

6. That our client, under protest and without waiver of rights, attended the said interview. Upon your unilateral assessment that he did not “clear” the same, you withdrew the employment offer altogether, citing reasons not contemplated under the Offer Letter.

That the action on your part constitutes:

a) Breach of a concluded contract, the Offer Letter having been validly executed and accepted;

- b) Fraudulent inducement and misrepresentation, by concealing material facts relating to project dependency and additional interview conditions until after resignation;
- c) Violation of the doctrine of Promissory Estoppel, having induced our client to alter his position to his grave detriment;
- d) Arbitrary and unlawful withdrawal of employment, contrary to your own contractual terms;
- e) Unfair labour practice and professional misconduct, exposing our client to financial loss and career disruption.

That the conduct of the company is actionable under the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, settled judicial precedents, and principles of equity and good faith.

As a direct and proximate result of your unlawful acts, our client has suffered losses including but not limited to:

Amount (₹)

Buy-out paid to previous employer

1,35,000

Forfeited bonus

6,00,000

Loss of salary, professional opportunity, and career disruption to be quantified for mental agony, reputational harm, and litigation costs quantified presently as ₹7,35,000/- plus continuing damages.

In view of the above, you are hereby called upon to comply within 15 (fifteen) days from receipt of this notice by:

1. Paying ₹7,35,000/- to our client towards immediate losses suffered; AND
2. Issuing a written acknowledgment of wrongful withdrawal.

Please take notice that failure to comply within the stipulated period shall constrain our client to initiate appropriate civil and legal proceedings against Codvo Private Limited and its responsible officers, including but not limited to:

- Civil suit for damages and compensation;
- Proceedings for fraud and misrepresentation;
- Claim for interest, costs, and consequential reliefs;

entirely at your risk as to costs and consequences, without further reference.

It is our sincere hope that better sense would prevail upon you, and the matter would be resolved amicably without any avoidable unpleasantness. We have been instructed to further inform you that the action initiated in this regard would be without prejudice to any other cause of action which may have accrued, or may accrue in future, and also without prejudice to any other legal remedy which may be available to our above-mentioned client under any other law in respect of the present cause of action.

Thanking You

Yours Sincerely,
